Neighborhood News | AUGUST 2025

August brings with it a sense of fresh starts and new beginnings. For many of us, it stirs memories of sharpening pencils, new school supplies, and the excitement of going back to school. While, for some of us, school days may be behind us, the spirit of lifelong learning and growth is alive and well here at the Good Neighbor Society.

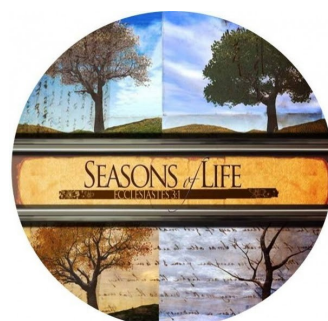

Katie Edgington,
Director, Meadows

We believe that every season offers us the chance to learn something new – whether it's picking up a new hobby, revisiting an old passion, or simply making new friends. Just as children and teachers prepare for a year of discovery and growth, we too can look at August as an invitation to step forward with curiosity and purpose.

This month, we encourage our tenants, residents, and condo owners to think about what “back to school” means in this season of life. Maybe it's joining that book club you've always wondered about, participating in a new exercise class, or taking part in our educational guest speaker programs. Perhaps it's as simple as trying a new activity or inviting a neighbor to share their skills with you.

August is also a wonderful time to connect with the younger generations – whether it's helping a grandchild pack for school, asking our team members about their upcoming college or continued education courses, sharing your wisdom and stories, or volunteering to help with our annual packing of hygiene kits for West Delaware's Back to School Fair. In doing so, we not only enrich the lives of young people in our community but keep our own minds and hearts young. As we turn the page to this new month, let's embrace the spirit of back to school with open minds and open hearts. Here's to new friendships, new knowledge, and the joy of growing – at every age.

Happy August, everyone!
